U.S. Navy Blue Angels Return to Sacramento

The California Capital Airshow at Mather Airport March 15-16 is the first civilian show on the 2008 schedule for the United States Navy Blue Angels.

The renowned flight demonstration team last performed at the inaugural California Capital Airshow in 2006, thrilling crowds with formation and solo high-performance maneuvers in addition to ground ceremonies.

"We are honored to welcome back the U.S. Navy Blue Angels in the Sacramento region only two years after the appearance at the inaugural California Capital Airshow," said G. Hardy Acree, California Capital Airshow Board Chair. "The team's desire to return is a credit to the Sacramento region and their support for aviation as well as the men and women who serve our country."

Air shows generally spend several years establishing their brand before attracting military precision jet teams. The California Capital Airshow has achieved a rare feat by attracting a jet team each of its first three years.
