New Transcontinental Flights at SMF

On June 3, U.S. Airways launches two new transcontinental flights at Sacramento International Airport. For the first time, Sacramento travelers can fly nonstop to Charlotte, NC and Philadelphia, PA. Flights to these the two cities offer convenience for all travelers. The coast-to-coast flights also provide connections to the Caribbean and Europe.

"These flights connect Sacramento with Charlotte, the second-largest banking center in the United States which will aid business relationships in our region. In addition to being the home of several Fortune 500 Corporations, Philadelphia is a well-known historical tourist destination and connects our travelers to points in Europe" said Terry Schutten, Sacramento County Executive.

The flight schedule is as follows and customers may book flights at www.usairways.com, by calling 800-428-4322 or through a travel agent.

New and Remodeled Vendors at SMF

Construction is underway on several remodels, new stores and restaurants at Sacramento International Airport. When the projects are complete, Sacramento airline passengers will enjoy more choices for food and shopping.

Cinnabon in the upstairs Food Court in Terminal A is closed for remodeling. Passengers who love the smell of cinnamon can expect it to reopen in late April.

Nelson's Books and News upstairs in Terminal A is remodeling. The store is open during construction, which will be complete by mid-summer.

A new travel supply store, Nelson's Travel Company, will open soon next to Brooks Brothers in Terminal A on the upper level.

An expanded Starbucks is under construction next to Vino Volo on the upper concourse in Terminal A. The current Starbucks will remain open until the project is complete in early May.

Two new Starbucks are also opening in early May on the upper concourses in Terminal B.

More new restaurants are coming soon. Keep reading AirMail for the latest updates.

Airshow Draws a Crowd

More than 75,000 attended the two-day California Capital Airshow held at Mather Airport March 15 and 16. Partly cloudy skies on Saturday formed a perfect backdrop for the performers and high winds on Sunday had minimal impact on the show schedule.

"The California Capital Airshow Board of Directors is pleased with the quality of the 2008 California Capital Airshow. Judging by the attendance this past weekend, demand clearly exists for a family-friendly, regional event like this. The California Capital Airshow Board of Directors will spend the next several weeks debriefing the recent airshow," said G. Hardy Acree, Chairman of the Board, California Capital Airshow.

The California Capital Airshow's Board of Directors extends its thanks to its sponsors, volunteers, vendors, exhibitors and attendees for their support. The U.S. Navy Blue Angels and performers are pleased with the warm reception from the region during the airshow and Navy Week.

"The events surrounding this year's Navy Week in Sacramento and the California Capital Airshow proved to be of significant value to the Navy's over-all awareness efforts and to the community. It was a pleasure being a guest of such a fine community and I will always have fond memories of those with which I met," said RDML John Clarke Orzalli, Commander Navy Regional Maintenance Centers and this year's Navy Week Flag Speaker.

Remodeled CPK Now Open in Terminal A

California Pizza Kitchen ASAP recently unveiled its newly remodeled location in Terminal A at Sacramento International Airport. In addition to the new look, the restaurant also features added menu items. At the walk-up counter, airport passengers can now order breakfast paninis. Breakfast is served until 10 a.m. Pizzas, salads, sandwiches and soups are available for lunch and dinner.

The former Sacramento Brewing Company is now part of CPK ASAP and features a new full-service food and beverage menu. The sit-down restaurant offers 5 new pasta choices, including Chicken Tequila Fettucine and Macaroni and Cheese. These
